

05 degree of Sagittarius: 'An old owl up in a tree'

Have you ever looked an owl in the eye? She stares from depth of knowing that can be frightening, as is the invisible swoosh of her powerful wings in the dark.

In mythology and dreams all birds are soul-messengers. The owls' come from places, memories and people that are part of our unconscious and the forgotten past. The night and the unknown are her domain. During the day, our conscious hours, the owl becomes invisible, her plumage perfectly concealing her.

The image reminds us that this is an old owl; hence her wisdom is ancient too, coming from those ancestral times when night's induced dreams and visions were a source of awe and divine counsel.
