

5 degree of Aquarius: 'A council of ancestors'

According to many cultural traditions our ancestors wait for us at the end of life, performing the role of mediators between the newly dead, still clinging to the illusion of physical existence, and the mystery of the beyond.

Known faces and familiar vibes are there to alleviate the sufferings of loss and also to initiate us into a new life.

Those being or powers are there to facilitate our passage not only in death but also in life. The pool of wisdom from which we can always draw sustenance and strength is again like a council of ancestors. They represent the atavist knowledge within our own psyche that remembers having been here before and having faced similar crisis as the ones we are facing. Through this knowing we gain the detachment needed to see things in a clear, non-egoic light.
