

19 degree of Aquarius: 'A forest fire quenched'

It is in the nature of forest fires to be unpredictable, sometimes burning slowly for days, without causing major damages, or even improving the soil in the long run, while, at other times, fast and fierce, destroying everything on their path.

Here the danger has past, human intervention has saved the day.

The image suggests the sense of relief and calm after dealing successfully with a dangerous situation: a physical emergency, violence or an emotional outburst. Only a courageous and prompt response could prove adequate to such a task.
