

28 degree of Capricorn: 'A large aviary'

A large aviary is somewhat like a low security prison: there is more room to move around and interact with other birds, more comfort and more entertaining things to do, but, in the end, it is just a glorified cage. So is a purely material world-view to the souls of those individuals who are completely caught up in it.

We are all in the same aviary, all lured into thinking that we are free. But there are actually gaps in the fence and a whole universe is out there, waiting to be discovered, the cage's confinement being more psychological and self-imposed than real.
